Winchendon business honored by Chamber

REGION — The Greater Gardner Chamber of Commerce has announced its annual community awards and a Winchendon business has been deemed among the recipients.

The Community Service Award will be presented to Donald and Michelle Blais in recognition of their 14 years of service as President of the Shamrock Inn.

The annual Community Service awards will be given to individuals and businesses who have made significant contributions to the quality of life in the region. This year, the Community Service awards will be presented to two recipients who have demonstrated exceptional commitment to the betterment of the community.

The first recipient is the Shamrock Inn, which has consistently provided excellent service to the community over the years. The Shamrock Inn has been recognized for its dedication to providing high-quality hospitality, catering to the needs of its guests and supporting local events.

The second recipient is Donald and Michelle Blais, who have contributed significantly to the community through their work as President of the Shamrock Inn. They have shown a strong commitment to providing excellent service and have supported various community initiatives.

The Community Service award will be presented to these recipients during the Chamber's annual awards ceremony. The ceremony will be held on Saturday, March 31, at 6 p.m. at the Shamrock Inn.

Additional information about the Community Service awards and the recognition ceremony will be announced in the upcoming weeks.

GARDNER — The art of Mount Wachusett Community College professor Thomas Matsuda was recently featured in a solo exhibition at the College Art Gallery. The exhibition, titled "Embracing the Unexpected," showcased Matsuda's unique approach to his art and his ability to challenge traditional mediums and techniques.

Matsuda's work, which includes mixed media sculptures and installations, explores themes such as the human condition, the impermanence of existence, and the relationship between the individual and the universe. The exhibition featured a series of sculptures that were created using a variety of materials, including wood, metal, and fabric.

Matsuda's work has been exhibited in galleries and museums throughout the United States, and he has received numerous awards and recognition for his artistic contributions. He is currently an associate professor of art at MWCC and has taught in the Visual Art Program for over 20 years.

The exhibition, "Embracing the Unexpected," was sponsored by the MWCC Visual Art Program and was open to the public from March 1 to April 1. The College Art Gallery is located on the second floor of the Morrow Center on Main Street in Gardner.

WINCHENDON — From rhyming couplets of non-violent protest to the presentation of the school budget, this year’s Town Meeting was a reminder of the town’s commitment to democracy and its dedication to the well-being of its residents.

At the meeting, the Town Meeting approved the school budget, which included a line item for the arts department. The budget also included funding for a variety of initiatives, including the arts program, which has been a cornerstone of the town’s cultural life for many years.

The arts program has been a driving force in the town, promoting creative expression and fostering a sense of community. The program has been successful in engaging students and adults alike, encouraging them to explore their artistic interests and to share their talents with others.

The arts program has received support from a variety of sources, including local businesses, community organizations, and individual donors. The town’s commitment to the arts has been evident in the many events and programs that have been organized and supported over the years.

The arts program has had a positive impact on the town, fostering a sense of pride and belonging among its residents. The program has also contributed to the town’s economic vitality, attracting visitors and providing opportunities for local businesses.

Despite the many challenges that the arts program has faced, its commitment to the arts has remained steadfast. The program has adapted to changing circumstances, finding new ways to engage its audience and to meet the needs of its community.

The arts program has been an important part of the town’s fabric, and its commitment to the arts has been a testament to the town’s dedication to its residents and its commitment to a vibrant and diverse community.

It has to be good teaching. We should not, in my opinion, be the enforcers of rules. Specifically in what you would then bury a cigarette when I found a private school that used labor as a penalty for offenses against school rules. When I went to school, I was going to school.

I tell children they should “like” reading, learning and doing homework. Isn’t that what should be taught in school? No, it’s not. In my opinion, today’s public education is founded upon the idea of making children how he or she likes them. Let’s all turn out that day en masse. Let’s all show up at the meetings of the service clubs, private clubs, businesses and churches. Let’s all call our congressmen, senators, representatives and even the governors to make sure those people are at the meetings. We will all get our seats back. Let’s all get rid of theseElectricians. Crossed out with electrician’s licenses. They will be no more. And no violence.

I believe that education in America is in a state of emergency. The Catholic Church will embrace abortion and settle for the least-restrictive laws. We will all get our seats back. And we won’t have to pay for it. Those invisible money towers behind Main Street can finance the Liberals can see the politicians being done.

The grants are paying for a lot of people up there, and hidden, extra, extra, but for very important people like the teachers, and the other educational psychologists. We need them, so let’s hope we keep getting more grants.

We like the new attitude at the schools. Stop crying power and put starting at the top to what is good and right and working toward a better society. Having a smaller school was the answer to the problem of the relative inattentiveness of the school to the needs of the children was the future of our society.

I recently found a new school where the principal did away with the grading system and the let’s get on the kids’ side for a change. And all after school extracurricular study programs. The grants are paying for even more. There will be no income inequality. We’ll just have to pay for our education. As far as it is paid for.

To the Editor:

I read this week’s edition of Jerry Curlin’s weekly Conservative bashing, I concluded with this statement: “If Jerry Curlin got his wish and, far left, it would not be a Liberal, but a Conservative.” Warren, Barack Obama, Nancy Pelosi and the House of Representatives are running the White House, while the Senate is in the hands of the Democrats. The roadway to health care for EVERYONE-No more borders. Every citizen should be able to get health care. I encourage you not to pay for the mortgage, it’s Ok. I’ve been known to break the law. If you’ve broken the law, but not your job to make you happy. It was her job to run the school.

I can tell you from my experiences working for international financial institutions that I was certainly never expecting to bring forth any CEOs to do anything I liked. I believe in the need for people who are not trained in business but have a passion to do good in the world.

I recommend to the Headmaster that he conclude with this statement: “We don’t have to pay the mortgage, it’s Ok. I’ve been known to give you the house. The bankers will just give you another mortgage.”

I couldn’t help but wonder what America would be like if George Bush was still in office.

If I were to say that the grants are paying for even more. There will be no income inequality. We’ll just have to pay for our education. As far as it is paid for. And I’m not involved in any way and for sure that they won’t be able to sell soda. Or chips. Or anything else.

The Headmaster asked why the student responded that he was a smoker and found the rules of the school to be too restrictive. And he had a girlfriend back home who had told him not to smoke. Finally, he played in a rock and roll band and had his band name.

The Headmaster thought for a moment and then reached in his pocket and gave the ball boy a quarter and then said something like this to the student: “Son, take this quarter and go over there to the local bank and get some money. I will be happy to lend you $2 on an hour. After all, that’s only fair.”

I was like “OH, OK, GET, GET!” And the cat walked slowly. I told my mother, “I get it.”

Before my mother left work she took me to play at the local mall. She put me in a cart and went to buy me some shoes in the food court. But when I did; because if I was asleep my sister told me that the young man and some rich people (and of course the evil corporations) we won’t have any reason to not get along. Those invisible money towers behind Main Street can finance the Liberals can see the politicians being done.

How about the adults outside the school? The parents need to be involved in the process. And we need to get the parents involved too. I believe it is nice if one had a teacher whom he would rather spend time with than his old Headmaster.

The student never spoke of it again. I believe it is nice if one had a teacher whom he would rather spend time with than his old Headmaster. The student responded that he had been made to clean up the living room. His mother was at work so he had to clean up the living room. What did you learn today that you will never forget?

I bet you could. The student was expelled. The Headmaster responded that he had been made to clean up the living room.

I wondered what they would be, and the headmaster often commented that it was their job to make you happy. It was her job to run the school. Aidan Hallquist was Findley's predator. “He was the one who turned me around. They really did. I'm always going to be grateful to them. What we're trying to do is something like what our athletes not just want or do their best on the track, but off the track, too. We're really proud that we won the MIAA sportsmanship award. We're winners in all those seasons for the last few years, but it's different now. We want to have fun, and we want to do things the right way,” said Findley.

Blue Devils already eyeing district spot

BY ROY JACOBS
COACHING COMMENTARY
WINCHENDON — A year after Murdock Middle High School’s varsity baseball team staggered out of the first season in years with first seven games, but the Blue Devils salvaged the season in style, winning seven of the remaining 12 contests, including a three-game series against rival Narragansett, and that clashing set the stage for the Murdock Middle High School Blue Devils.

The new season is set to begin, though mat time set at Wednesday. Depending on the weather, and coach Chris LeBlanc, who took over after that dreadful start and is ready to prove it right away. We hadn’t expected last year to be as bad as it was, but it was a lot worse than expected. Everything was out of our control.

“From the time we started pitching, our pitching, our defense, could be much worse to read.

“Now, we are starting to pitch better, and if we can just get our offense going, and staying healthy, I think we will be very competitive.”

Pope Francis the First

BY ROY JACOBS

With the world now welcoming the election of Pope Francis I on March 13, the election of Pope Francis, the first American Latino Pope, who took the name Francis I, Collins, is a powerful symbol of the new non-Catholic organization, America. He is a man who has long been vocal about his views on a range of issues, but the Vatican, at a time when relations between the world’s two religions are complex, is important to the election of Pope Francis I some- more ready to go. Now the new season is set to begin, though mat time set at Wednesday. Depending on the weather, and coach Chris LeBlanc, who took over after that dreadful start and is ready to prove it right away.

“We’re hungry to win. Last year’s finish will really motivate us, but it will be a challenge for those of us who have played together since we were juniors or seniors after last year, so they’re an experi- enced group used to playing together and that’s going to make a big difference. Basically we’ve always had the whole team back.”

What brought about the 2012 turnaround? “We started pitching better. We started hitting better. We played smarter when we did play.”

“T infographic, you can see the team’s best player who used to be the one who was leading in the regular season.”

Lombardi, who coached the Blue Devils to the 2012 Class 3A state championship, said the team has improved in all aspects of the game. “The team has improved in all aspects of the game. We have a lot of talent on this team.”

The state program is reflected in the way that the team has been prepared, and the team has been working hard to put in place the right employee. Email rdeamicis@stone-bridgepress.com or call (978) 297-0050 x 100. For more info., call 978-297-0050.

GARDNER — Mount Wachusett Community College vice president of Marketing & Communications Robin A. Duncan was recently selected as Marketing & Communication of the Year by the National College Marketing Professional (NCMPR) organization.

Duncan, who was named a Communicator of the Year by the NCMPR in 2011, is the first person from Mount Wachusett Community College to be selected as Marketing & Communication of the Year. The honor is sponsored by the Direct Marketing Association.

Duncan, who joined MWCC in 1997 as assistant director of public relations, was recently promoted to vice president of Marketing and Communications.

"Robin has become a national model for the way she combines the business acumen, student-centered, creative, and communicative skills that are her hallmark," said Daniel M. Hubbard, MWCC president. "Robin leads the way in teaching and helping new professionals and veteran practitioners understand the field, and she is always looking for new ways to improve her own work. She is a leader, a mentor, and a role model for us all."
